Dear Sir-I note in your report that you state that there is acceptance of widespread alteration of the landscape of mid wales due to an increase of wind farms and solar panels. Who has accepted this alteration? Certainly not me and our neighbours and friends. This mid wales countryside is precious and at present unspoiled and is some of the last proper countryside left in the United Kingdom. It is valued by visitors and locals and must not be ruined by widespread development. What about all the animals and birds not to mention the beautiful grasses, ferns and trees etc.?

Your government will have a fight on its hands if you try to ruin our beloved countryside . It is the ancient historic heart of Wales and must not be destroyed by men greedy for transient modern soi-disant 'conveniences'

Yours faithfully

E Barnes
