I wish to object most strongly to the plan to make large parts of mid Wales preferred areas for onshore turbines.

Huge numbers of turbines will totally damage the countryside and the concrete foundations have been shown to damage the drainage and hydrology of the land they are built upon.

furthermore there will be a requirement for pylons and lesser masts with their concomitant wiring.

I was in the area of Tryweryn not so long ago and the pylons there substantially degraded the countryside.

I would like to remind WAG that the people of North Powys have already rejected having Wind Turbines and their associated pylons built in this area.

Offshore turbines are much more efficient.

I am amazed that any one who knows of the destruction of our land, as happened with mining, could even entertain the idea of trashing another part of Wales.
