General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)

The Welsh Government will be data controller for any personal data you provide as part of your response to the consultation. Welsh Ministers have statutory powers they will rely on to process this personal data which will enable them to make informed decisions about how they exercise their public functions. Any response you send us will be seen in full by Welsh Government staff dealing with the issues which this consultation is about or planning future consultations. Where the Welsh Government undertakes further analysis of consultation responses then this work may be commissioned to be carried out by an accredited third party (e.g. a research organisation or a consultancy company). Any such work will only be undertaken under contract. Welsh Government's standard terms and conditions for such contracts set out strict requirements for the processing and safekeeping of personal data.

In order to show that the consultation was carried out properly, the Welsh Government intends to publish a summary of the responses to this document. We may also publish responses in full. Normally, the name and address (or part of the address) of the person or organisation who sent the response are published with the response. If you do not want your name or address published, please tell us this in writing when you send your response. We will then redact them before publishing.

You should also be aware of our responsibilities under Freedom of Information legislation

If your details are published as part of the consultation response then these published reports will be retained indefinitely. Any of your data held otherwise by Welsh Government will be kept for no more than three years.

Your rights

Under the data protection legislation, you have the right:

- to be informed of the personal data held about you and to access it
- to require us to rectify inaccuracies in that data
- to (in certain circumstances) object to or restrict processing
- for (in certain circumstances) your data to be 'erased'
- to (in certain circumstances) data portability
- to lodge a complaint with the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) who is our independent regulator for data protection.

Introduction

On 7 May 2019 the First Minister in the Senedd Mark Drakeford said:

‘We know that 20mph zones reduce speed of traffic, reduce accidents – particularly accidents to children– and we want to see that become the default position right across Wales.’

Following this, the Wales 20mph Taskforce Group was formed on the direction of Lee Waters, the Deputy Minister for Economy and Transport, in May 2019.

The 20mph Taskforce Group published a report in October 2020, which made 21 recommendations for the rollout of the 20mph default national speed limit on restricted roads. All were accepted by the Welsh Government. Restricted roads are defined as roads on which are provided a system of street lighting furnished by means of lamps placed not more than 200 yards apart. They are typically located in residential and built-up areas of high pedestrian activity in Wales. The default national speed limit for such roads is currently 30mph, although local authorities can use traffic regulation orders to set another speed limit in appropriate cases. A debate was held in the Senedd on the 15th July 2020 which resulted in a vote to support the Welsh Government’s intention to commence the speed limit reform process, which received a large majority in favour of the proposal.

The Welsh Government commissioned Beaufort Research to assess public attitudes towards introducing a 20mph default speed on restricted roads in Wales. In November 2020, they conducted a survey of 1000 people and over across Wales. The results have now been published. Traffic Orders and 20mph public attitudes survey.

We now seek your views on the proposals and would be grateful for your opinions by completing the following survey.

Public consultation

This Consultation will present information and evidence supporting the benefits of reduced speeds on restricted roads to road safety and to our communities. By completing the survey either online or printed, this is an opportunity for everyone in Wales to be involved and express their opinions about this policy.
