

TRANSPORT SAFETY

Llywodraeth Cymru
Welsh Government

Over the past 10 years, there have been 22 on-farm deaths involving a moving vehicle in Wales, with at least one death in each of the last ten years.

Moving vehicles are also responsible for a large number of serious, agricultural injuries – the most common types involving vehicles either reversing or overturning or people using quad bikes.

To prevent on-farm accidents and injury, follow the safety tips below:

- Ensure all loads are stable and secure.
- Only use lifting equipment fit for the job and operated by somebody who has the necessary training and expertise.
- Protect and mark all sharp or dangerous edges – covering or removing attachments on material handlers during road use.
- Think about general site visibility – would lights and signs help?
- Head injuries are the most common cause of death from accidents involving quad bikes – wear a properly fitting, undamaged helmet at all times when riding a quad.

Make sure that you and your employees are adequately trained and competent to use machinery. For advice on training contact Lantra on 01982 552646
