A message from the First Minister

No ground was ever gained for progressive causes without struggle. Whenever the case for change is made, defenders of vested interests and the status quo emerge. Nowhere is this clearer than in the struggle to secure the rights of LGBTQ+ people. The modern history of LGBTQ+ liberation extends over more than fifty years. The cumulative human cost involved in confronting entrenched prejudice has been enormous. The efforts of pioneers have secured really significant advances. But the need for constant vigilance remains. Discrimination and prejudice may no longer be legally or socially acceptable, but they have certainly not disappeared, nor is the effort to secure further advances over.

That is why this ambitious, cross-government LGBTQ+ Action Plan seeks to tackle the existing inequalities experienced by LGBTQ+ communities, to challenge discrimination, and to create a society where LGBTQ+ people feel safe to live and love authentically, openly, and freely as themselves.

This Plan is a statement, a powerful statement, of our determination to go on, walking down that road together here in Wales, to build on a movement of formidable courage. We are determined that, by working together and standing up for what we know to be right, we can create that equal and beautiful Wales we all want to see.

This is our first Plan to focus on responding to the specific needs, diversity, and vulnerabilities of our LGBTQ+ communities. For the first time, we have brought together our existing commitments and set out how we intend to advance LGBTQ+ equality and inclusion, to make a real difference to the life chances, prospects, rights, and outcomes for LGBTQ+ people, into the future.

We have also strengthened the ways in which we will deliver the Plan and be held accountable for it. We have secured a realistic budget and evaluation strategy to monitor success during this Senedd term. Our aim is to close the gap between publishing an Action Plan, and seeing it implemented. In fact, work to implement this plan has already begun.

We know that issues being faced by LGBTQ+ communities are often multidimensional: that is why this Action Plan has a focus on intersectionality. It aligns closely with all our work to advance human rights and reduce inequality relating to gender, disability, faith, age, and race – how this intersects with LGBTQ+ rights, with no-one left behind, will be key to this Plan's success.

I hope you will enjoy reading the Plan for what it is – the accumulation of the efforts of so many people here in Wales but still only the first step in a journey which certainly does not end here.

Rt Hon Mark Drakeford MS
First Minister of Wales

Ministerial Foreword

The Welsh Government stands together with and within our LGBTQ+ communities in Wales. That's why LGBTQ+ rights are embedded in our Programme for Government, are a key component of the Co-operation Agreement with Plaid Cymru, and why we have developed this bold Action Plan. This plan strengthens protections for LGBTQ+ people, promotes equality for all, and helps co-ordinate actions across Government, communities and the country in order to achieve our ambition of making Wales the most LGBTQ+ friendly nation in Europe.

As we emerge from the COVID-19 pandemic, these values are even more central to creating a fairer, more prosperous and a more equal Wales. Support for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, non-binary, intersex, asexual, aromantic, queer and questioning people (LGBTQ+) is at the heart of this commitment.

We want Wales to be a nation where everyone feels safe to be themselves, to be open about their sexual orientation, gender, and gender expression, at home, in work or at leisure, without feeling threatened. This Action Plan must form part of our collective commitment to create a Wales where everyone feels free, supported, and safe to be, and live their lives as, our authentic selves.

A Wales where people like me don't need to wonder whether it is safe to hold our partner's hand in public; a Wales where slurs and snide remarks, whether online or on the streets, is no longer commonplace, and a Wales where hate is consigned to history. We've come a long way in the past few decades when it comes to LGBTQ+ rights, but LGBTQ+ people can still face discrimination and harassment – whether in the workplace, education, family settings, healthcare, social care, and more. However, we are in an age where it can feel like we are under attack, and that our rights are at risk of being rolled back: whether that is around the world or, sadly, slightly closer to home, with the apparent regressive position on LGBTQ+ rights being pursued by the current UK Conservative Government. There is a sense of history repeating itself, from the language of vilification, fear and othering targeted at the trans community to the toxic mix of misogyny and homophobia that many of us are all too familiar with.

This must change, and the work on creating that change has begun.

The LGBTQ+ Action Plan has been developed in collaboration with a wide range of communities and organisations across all parts of Wales. The goals and actions have been shaped jointly with LGBTQ+ people and we made 'Nihil de nobis, sine nobis' ('nothing about us without us') one of the values that underpins this Action Plan and our approach. We are incredibly grateful to everyone, particularly the LGBTQ+ Expert Panel, for their contribution to this work, and the willingness of LGBTQ+ people to extend their trust in believing in the possibility of positive change.

Together, in the past few years, we have already made progress in Wales. We have pushed forward with curriculum reform, embedding LGBTQ+ inclusive education. We established a gender identity service to help our trans communities be their true selves. We became the first nation in the UK to offer PrEP (Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis, an anti-HIV drug) free on the NHS. We have supported Pride Cymru and grassroots Pride events in communities across Wales.

We published the HIV Action Plan for Wales for consultation in 2022. The plan aims to reach the target of zero new HIV transmissions by 2030, to tackle late diagnosis in Wales and HIV-related stigma, and improve the quality of life of people living with HIV. We continue to develop our gender service in Wales, which reports shorter waiting times for first assessment than comparable NHS gender services in England and is committed to reducing waiting times further. We are also committed to improving the pathway for supporting transgender young people in Wales. The Welsh Health Specialised Services Committee, responsible for the service, will look at available evidence to further define the clinical service model for the future, and community voices will be front and centre of this work.

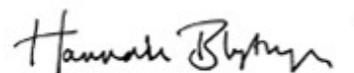

Our commitment to support LGBTQ+ people seeking sanctuary in Wales and demonstrate our international duty to show leadership on equality has never been more important. We have called out the UK Government, expressing our horror at their plans to send asylum seekers to Rwanda. This would be devastating for LGBTQ+ people, placing them at risk of ill treatment, discrimination, arbitrary arrest, and detention. Our place in the world and LGBTQ+ issues beyond our borders remain important to us – we have a duty to do what is right at home, including challenging and working with UK Government and abroad using our platform to engage and influence.

Here in Wales, we are committed to leaving no stone unturned when it comes to banning conversion practices for all LGBTQ+ people. Working with Plaid Cymru as part of the Co-operation Agreement, we have started complex work, including seeking legal advice to determine all the levers we have for a ban in Wales, developing our campaign to raise awareness of support services and the horrors of conversion practices, and we have established a Working Group of experts to advise government. We are proud of our progressive approach in Wales, doing things differently and working together in partnership with Plaid Cymru towards creating a more inclusive and supportive society, politics and nation.

We know we need to ensure the voices and lived experiences of LGBTQ+ people need to be not just heard but acted upon. The way in which we developed this Plan made sure that these personal stories and experiences were written into this work. People generously gave their time, and many shared their experiences of discrimination and hostility as citizens in Wales. They also shared their achievements as advocates, workers, and leaders; as researchers, experts, and professionals; and as communities. This Plan is a culmination of an effort to sustain open and dynamic dialogues within and between the Welsh Government, local government, academics, activists, community groups, and individuals from the breadth of the LGBTQ+ communities in Wales.

During a visit to meet with the Digon group from Ysgol Plasmawr in Cardiff, I asked the students what message they would want us to share in a statement to mark Pride Month 2022. The message was clear: “I don’t just want to be tolerated, I want to be celebrated”. The greatest tribute we can pay to the pioneers that paved the way for people like me, is to continue to work together in common cause – to speak up, stand up and play our own part in achieving a fairer future where we feel safe, supported, and celebrated. Together in Pride and towards progress, we can create the Wales we want to be and become the most LGBTQ+ friendly nation in Europe.

Hannah Blythyn MS

Deputy Minister for Social Partnership

Introduction

LGBTQ+ rights are human rights.

The Welsh Government wants to make Wales the most LGBTQ+ friendly nation in Europe. It is an ambitious goal, but we believe we can support all LGBTQ+ people in Wales to live their fullest life: to be healthy, to be happy, and to feel safe.

As a government, we stand with our LGBTQ+ communities. That is why LGBTQ+ rights are embedded in our Programme for Government commitments (Welsh Government 2021a), are a key component of the Co-operation Agreement (Welsh Government 2021b) with Plaid Cymru, and why we have developed this ambitious Action Plan. Our aim, through this plan, is to show our clear commitment to respecting, protecting, and fulfilling the human rights of all LGBTQ+ people in Wales (OHCHR 2022a).

This plan will act as the framework for LGBTQ+ policy development across government and with our partners. It sets out the concrete steps we will take to strengthen equality for LGBTQ+ people, to challenge discrimination, and to create a society where LGBTQ+ people are safe to live and love authentically, openly and freely as themselves.

This LGBTQ+ Action Plan for Wales has been established to help coordinate action by the Welsh Government and other agencies. The plan sets out an overarching vision to improve the lives of, and outcomes for, LGBTQ+ people. It includes a wide range of policy-specific actions relating to human rights, education, improving safety, housing, health and social care, sport, culture, and promoting community cohesion. In particular, through this Action Plan, the Welsh Government commits to defend and promote the rights and dignity of trans and non-binary people, and to make those communities feel welcome and included in Welsh society.

For the first time, we have brought together our existing commitments and set out how we intend to advance LGBTQ+ equality and inclusion, to make a real difference to the lives, prospects, and outcomes for LGBTQ+ people, today and in the future.

Our vision

We developed a vision, or a higher-level framework, that can guide us towards what we want to achieve with this Action Plan. This will help us all pull in the same direction, and towards the same destination. We believe in the importance of creating sustainable, long-term change – starting today. We have gained commitment from a wide range of partners in the creation of this Action Plan who share our vision:

For all LGBTQ+ people, we will:

- strengthen equality and human rights (Welsh Government 2022a)
- make Wales a safer place
- make Wales a Nation of Sanctuary for LGBTQ+ migrants
- improve healthcare outcomes
- ensure education in Wales is inclusive
- improve inclusion and participation in all areas of life
- listen to, and work with, our LGBTQ+ communities
- defend and promote the rights of trans and non-binary people.

This Plan sets a benchmark for how we will achieve these challenging and ambitious goals, and build a society where LGBTQ+ people are included and celebrated.

“ Forty years ago, gay and bisexual people were subject to hateful slurs and prejudiced attacks. Trans people today are being subjected to a similar barrage of hate-fuelled debates. We believe that extending rights for one group does not mean eroding rights from another. We do not believe improving rights for trans women will damage rights for cisgender women and girls. Our trans communities are hurting, they’re afraid, and they’re experiencing harm. As a society, we can and must do better than this. ”

*Hannah Blythyn MS, Deputy Minister for Social Partnership
(Senedd Cymru 2022a)*

How did we get here?

We have come a long way in the past few decades when it comes to strengthening equality and human rights for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, non-binary, intersex or VSC (or Variations of Sex Characteristics – see below Glossary of Terms), asexual, and aromantic people in Wales and across the UK – in short, all LGBTQ+ communities. However, we cannot be complacent, with LGBTQ+ rights often under attack, and hard-fought-for rights at risk of being rolled back around the world, including here in the UK.

Changes to the law have meant schools, organisations and public services are now doing much more to advance these rights and tackle LGBTQ+ discrimination. Equal marriage and adoption rights are now a reality and we have now consigned Section 28 to history – a law passed in 1988 that stopped local authorities and schools “promoting the teaching of the acceptability of homosexuality as a pretended family relationship” (Local Government Act 1988). We have seen a huge shift in positive public attitudes towards LGBTQ+ communities and for LGBTQ+ inclusion, as well as gaining a better picture of LGBTQ+ groups in Wales. The inclusion of voluntary questions on sexual orientation and gender identity, asked for the first time in the 2021 Census, can serve as an example of this (Office for National Statistics 2023; Welsh Government 2023), where 92.4% of the population aged 16 years and over responded to the voluntary sexual orientation question in Wales, and c.77,000 usual residents in Wales selected an LGB+ sexual orientation in 2021.

However, many continue to face significant barriers to participating fully and equally in Welsh society. In a survey commissioned to support development of this Plan in summer 2020 (Welsh Government 2021c), it was found that, among those who took part in the survey, 78% of respondents have avoided being open about their sexual orientation or gender for fear of a negative reaction from others. Furthermore, 46% of LGBTQ+ people in Wales had experienced verbal harassment in the year prior to the survey. Such findings show the distressing experiences LGBTQ+ people continue to go through in Wales today and demonstrate how far we still have to go to achieve equality, and for people to feel happy and safe by just simply being who they are.

Even before the COVID-19 pandemic, we knew LGBTQ+ communities were more likely to experience a range of inequalities or worse outcomes compared with heterosexual and cisgender populations (WCEC 2022, Welsh Government 2021c; Welsh Government 2021d: page 3). In particular, those communities reported experiencing:

- lower life satisfaction levels
- poorer access to healthcare services
- bullying, discrimination and hate crime in school, the workplace or in their communities
- higher-level of substance misuse, including alcohol and smoke
- poorer mental health including loneliness, depression, and suicide.

These disadvantages are further exacerbated when the specific needs and vulnerabilities of being LGBTQ+ intersects with other protected characteristics including age, race, religion, and disability (Switchboard 2018).

The COVID-19 pandemic revealed the structural inequalities faced by the most marginalised and disadvantaged LGBTQ+ communities in Wales and in some cases has made those inequalities worse (WCEC 2022). For LGBTQ+ people, research highlights ongoing concerns in education, personal and community safety, health and social care, and the workplace (Welsh Government 2021c). The Welsh Government commissioned research, a review of existing evidence, and published a report in April 2022 on the impact of COVID-19 on LGBTQ+ communities, and a similar picture emerged (WCEC 2022). These reports also highlighted the need for improved strategic coordination on LGBTQ+ issues, including collection of robust data, and using data to improve policies. Moreover, additional observations by Welsh Government, for instance in the Locked Out report (Welsh Government 2021e) and in our response to the COVID-19 Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic Socio-economic Sub-Group Report (Welsh Government 2020a), revealed further inequalities experienced during the pandemic by ethnic minority communities and disabled people in Wales.

Emerging evidence also suggests LGBTQ+ people may have faced barriers in being unable to access healthcare services or medication as a result of the pandemic, while in certain cases being at increased risk of violence, abuse, homelessness, lower rates of employment, social isolation and loneliness (EHRC 2020; LGBT Foundation 2020; EHRC, 2018a: pp139–140). Research shows that LGBTQ+ people are more likely to be victims of domestic abuse (EHRC 2018a: pp139–140). Furthermore, LGBT Foundation's Domestic Abuse Support Programme has seen demand for support rise since lockdown measures were introduced: a 38% rise in the number of people referred for domestic abuse support, and a 38% increase in calls to the helpline referring to domestic abuse (LGBT Foundation 2020). LGBT young people are more likely to find themselves homeless than their non LGBT peers, comprising up to 24% of the youth homeless population (Albert Kennedy Trust 2015) and employment rates are considerably lower for trans and non-binary people, and lower again for Black, Asian, and Minority Ethnic people who are transgender (GEO 2018a). Parts of the LGBTQ+ population are also more likely to be lonely or socially isolated, especially older people (LGBT Foundation 2020).

The actions within this plan aim to address several of these issues and barriers, through providing tangible and measurable actions to be taken to improve the lives of LGBTQ+ people in Wales. Progress can and never should be taken for granted and more work needs to be done for Wales to lead by example and safeguard the hard-won freedoms of LGBTQ+ people.

The international context

We have witnessed a rise in anti-LGBTQ+ attitudes and hostility in many parts of the world. Looking at our neighbours in Europe, including within the UK, we have seen a rise in anti-LGBTQ+ rhetoric. However, this is at odds with strong levels of support among the public to tackle exclusion of LGBTQ+ people. As the International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans and Intersex Association stated in their 2022 report, there are two sides to the story that clearly emerge (ILGA-Europe 2022a):

“ On one hand, there was a severe rise in 2021 of anti-LGBTI rhetoric from politicians and other leaders, which has fuelled a wave of violence, with anti-LGBTI hate crime reported in every country this year; while on the other the response to this has been an allied determination in many countries, and at the European level, to tackle hatred and exclusion of LGBTI people. ”

We should not fail to acknowledge that the UK, once ranked the most LGBT-friendly nation in Europe, finished in 14th place in the most recent European rankings (ILGA-Europe 2022b). We must recognise that disadvantage, inequality, and discrimination remain a reality for many LGBTQ+ people living in Wales. More broadly, the human rights of LGBTQ+ people are under continuing or renewed threat in many countries.

From an international perspective, this Action Plan is underpinned by the Human Rights-based approach set out by the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights (UNSDG 2022) and the UN Independent Expert on Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity (IESOGI) (OHCHR 2022b), and supports the realisation of rights guaranteed to LGBTQ+ people included those in the:

- Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR)
- International Covenant of Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR)
- International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR)
- United Nations Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW)
- United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC)
- United Nations Principles for Older Persons (UNPOP).

In this respect, we also welcome the UN Human Rights Council decision to renew the mandate of the UN IESOGI in July 2022 (OHCHR 2022c). In 2016, when the Council created the first ever IESOGI mandate in the human rights system, it sent the clear message to the world that all LGBTQ+ people, with no exception, should be able to live a life free of violence and discrimination. The renewal of the mandate was not a given, and we are pleased that this important work will continue, showing clear support for tackling violence and discrimination against people of diverse sexual orientations and gender globally.

This approach ensures the Plan will also contribute strongly to the Welsh Government's fulfilment of its Public Sector Equality Duty functions, under section 149 of the Equality Act 2010. It will link to related work on gender equality, disability, race, and other protected characteristics under this Act. We recognise the need to ensure our equality Action Plans work together.

While this is the first policy framework to focus on the specific needs and vulnerabilities of LGBTQ+ people, it forms part of a wider approach to mainstream equality and strengthen human rights protections for everyone. As such, it should be read alongside our Strategic Equality Plan, Anti-racist Wales Action Plan, Framework for Action on Disability, and Gender Equality Plan (Welsh Government 2020b; Welsh Government 2022b; Welsh Government 2019a; and Welsh Government 2020e).

The making of an LGBTQ+ Action Plan for Wales

The Welsh Government has worked with a wide range of LGBTQ+ communities and the organisations that support these communities to help develop this Action Plan. In the summer of 2020, we commissioned a survey to capture LGBTQ+ people's lived experiences in Wales, alongside holding a series of focus groups. Some of the important subjects raised in the survey, to which over 600 responses were received, included (1) tackling LGBTQ+ discrimination, (2) improving safety, and (3) addressing health inequalities, particularly trans health.

Focus groups looked at the needs of LGBTQ+ young people; older people; disabled people; and Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic people, and we also worked with other organisations including the Wales TUC, Women's Equality Network (WEN) Wales, Pride Cymru, and LGBT Helpline Cymru.

In November 2020, we brought together an LGBTQ+ External Reference Group to provide advice and guidance and in January 2021, the Independent LGBTQ+ Expert Panel was established to provide detailed advice on LGBTQ+ equality in Wales. We are indebted to the wide range of stakeholders from across communities who have worked with us to get to this stage, particularly the Independent LGBTQ+ Expert Panel. This Expert Panel was comprised of people with a depth of community-based, professional, and academic experience, as well as personal lived experience. The work of the Panel was enhanced by separate working groups which considered many issues in more detail. The Expert Panel produced a report (Welsh Government 2021c) including recommendations on incorporation of human rights into domestic law, strategic coordination and integration of plans, and training, awareness-raising and capacity building.

The report included recommendations for a broad range of policy areas, including:

- recognition of trans and non-binary people
- safety
- home and communities
- health and social care
- education and lifelong learning
- workplace
- supporting the COVID-19 response.

These recommendations formed the basis of the draft LGBTQ+ Action Plan on which the Welsh Government consulted from July to October 2021 (Welsh Government 2021c).

Consultation responses

More than 1,300 responses were received from individuals and organisations, offering views on the proposed Plan. A full analysis of the responses was undertaken by an external research company which has been used to help finalise the action plan. We are grateful to all individuals and organisations that took the time to respond to the consultation. A summary of consultation responses has been published along this Action Plan.

There were two significant campaigns identified within the responses. One centred on banning conversion practices, sometimes known as “conversion therapy”, and advocated a more explicit definition within the Action Plan. These responses felt that a clearer definition would be valuable in ensuring a balanced application of the law. Another campaign centred on concerns and the belief that issues relating to sex, sexual orientation, and gender should be addressed under a separate action plan.

In this respect, it is important to set out that the Welsh Government’s position on trans people is clear (Welsh Government 2020c; Senedd Cymru 2022b):

“ Trans women are women, trans men are men, and non-binary identities are valid. ”

Through Impact Assessments (see below), engagement with the LGBTQ+ Expert Panel, and the consultation responses, we continue to evaluate potential effects of our LGBTQ+ Action Plan. We have developed an Integrated Impact Assessment, we evaluated the potential effects of the LGBTQ+ Action Plan on women’s rights and, in considering provision set out in Schedule 3 of the Equality Act 2010, we are of the view that support for LGBTQ+ people and publishing this Plan will not result in the erosion of the rights of women, including cisgender and transgender women.

Improving, implementing, and monitoring actions

In response to our consultation on the draft Action Plan, the need for clarity on some actions and their implementation was raised. Some of the actions were described as too broad and more detailed proposals were required, including who was responsible for each action (e.g., “action owners”), when each action would be undertaken, and what the outcome would be for LGBTQ+ people in Wales. It was also mentioned that, throughout the draft Action Plan, actions concerning research and collection of data were suggested multiple times, without clear purpose or aims. Finally, a recurrent point was around unclear terminology and the need to provide a glossary of terms.

To clarify those aspects, we have separated out the vision we have for the LGBTQ+ Action Plan and the wider outcomes we want to achieve with the updated actions. The table of actions (see below, “LGBTQ+ Action Plan: Actions and Key Performance Indicators”) has been updated to set out some measurable activities, including outputs; who is responsible for each action; how each action will be carried out; and how we will measure success. Actions concerning research and data collection have been clarified in the context of achieving a specific aim, whether on improving services or devising strategies and plans in a specific area. We aim to provide an annual progress update to show what has been achieved and what more needs to be done and, ultimately, we hope to measure the impact of this Action Plan on LGBTQ+ communities in future. A glossary of terms, which has been shared with representatives of LGBTQ+ communities for accuracy and inclusion, has been added to this plan (see below, “Glossary of Terms”).

Measuring the impact of this Action Plan on LGBTQ+ communities will be crucial in evaluating its success and efficacy. Work will be done initially by the Welsh Government to outline how this Action Plan can be evaluated. This includes developing a theory of change to account for how activities will lead to desired outcomes and impacts, and upon which assumptions this success is based. We will also identify what information can be used to indicate the impact of the Action Plan, and whether this data is already collected by Welsh Government and other public bodies or if further data need to be collected. Designing and implementing the evaluation of the Action Plan will be undertaken in close collaboration with Welsh Government’s Equality, Poverty and Children’s Evidence and Support Division.

The impact of this Action Plan, and other Welsh Government Action Plans, will depend on our approach to implementation. An intersectional approach will be crucial. Through our work with internal and external stakeholders, we will consider and draw-in expertise from across a range of protected characteristics, to ensure that combined impacts are considered, as the Plan is put into action. Our internal stakeholder group, mostly composed of Deputy Directors and Heads of Policy, will be a central point for the governance of LGBTQ+ related work in the Welsh Government, and ensure that work is joined up in shaping and delivering the plan. Governance frameworks for all other equality plans will also be adjusted for the same purpose, and reporting mechanisms, including risk reporting, identified, and put in place.

The Welsh Government's activities affect more than 3 million people every day. Impact Assessment (IA) is a structured way to consider the factors that mean our policies affect different people's lives in different ways. Impact assessment guides us to better policy making and implementation and it supports our efforts to work collaboratively across portfolios to deliver the Ministers' vision to make a real difference for people in Wales. It is the process of identifying the possible consequences of a current or proposed action, and it plays an important part in options appraisal and decision making. This is the reason why our Impact Assessments are published alongside this LGBTQ+ Action Plan, including the assessment of impact through our Integrated Impact Assessment (IIA) approach.

Data and Research

The collection and analysis of data, including personal narratives from those who are experts by experience, is key to understanding the extent of the inequalities facing LGBTQ+ people in Wales. We are aware we must do more to improve the collection and reporting of equality data in Wales. Hence, we have established the Welsh Government Equality Evidence Unit which will provide cross-cutting analytical support to improve the collation, availability, and use of equalities evidence which in turn can help drive forward on-the-ground change to tackle inequalities in Wales. For instance, for those Actions in this Plan where Welsh Government leads on data collection and use, best practice concerning compliance with GDPR will be used.

It is important for Welsh Government to collect actionable evidence about its ability to deliver government priorities, and whether or not they are effectively implemented. The lawful basis for processing information as part of any data collection exercise is our public task; that is, exercising our official authority to undertake the core role and functions of the Welsh Government. There may be occasions when we collect special category data and the lawful basis for processing this information is that it is for statistical or research purposes. All personal data provided to Welsh Government is held on secure servers, with contact details and any personal data we collect stored in restricted folders. Research projects might have different requirements when it comes to how long personal data is retained, hence participants of each research project will be informed separately of the relevant data destruction timeframe.

All data collected by Welsh Government will be reported in an anonymised format. Welsh Government reports will not contain contact details and any identifiable information in open-ended answers will be removed. This will always be the case unless otherwise agreed with the individual(s) concerned. Under UK GDPR, providers of personal information to Welsh Government have the following rights:

- to access a copy of their own data
- for us to rectify inaccuracies in that data
- to object to or restrict processing (in certain circumstances)
- for their data to be 'erased' (in certain circumstances)
- to lodge a complaint with the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) who is our independent regulator for data protection.

The contact details for the Information Commissioner's Office are: Wycliffe House, Water Lane, Wilmslow, Cheshire, SK9 5AF. Phone: 01625 545 745 or 0303 123 1113. Website: <https://ico.org.uk/>. The Welsh Government's Data Protection Officer can be contacted at: Welsh Government, Cathays Park, Cardiff, CF10 3NQ, Email: DataProtectionOfficer@gov.wales.

A plan for all LGBTQ+ people

The consultation responses pointed to the lack of acknowledgement of certain LGBTQ+ groups or communities, such as bisexual, intersex, and asexual and aromantic people (Ace/Aro) in the Action Plan, as well as the lack of focus on the experiences of non-binary people. Some of the actions now clearly state that they concern all groups under the broader LGBTQ+ umbrella, which includes those communities; while others specifically address the needs of underserved groups, such as bisexual, non-binary and intersex people.

Stakeholder groups have recommended that we should use the acronym LGBTQ+ in relation to this work. Both the Expert Panel and the Welsh Government recognise there are different views and usages across our communities, and that practice is likely to change again in future. For further details, please see below our Glossary of Terms.

This Action Plan will be published in the most accessible form possible – to make sure that it reaches all LGBTQ+ people, including young people and disabled people. When the plan makes reference to LGBTQ+ people, this includes people of all ages.

The Welsh language is one of the treasures of Wales. It is part of what defines us as people and as a nation. Our ambition as Welsh Government is to see the number of people able to enjoy speaking and using Welsh reach a million by 2050. At the beginning of the sixth Senedd, the Welsh Government published a five-year work programme for delivering “Cymraeg 2050: A million Welsh speakers” during 2021-26 (Welsh Government 2022c). Whilst not a protected characteristic, Welsh speaking LGBTQ+ people also have specific Welsh language needs and intersectional identities. Therefore this LGBTQ+ Action Plan should be read in combination with the Welsh Language strategy and plans, considering the role of Welsh language across the activities outlined below. The Welsh language, and the responsibility for acting to protect it, belongs to us all. Everyone has their role, regardless of where they live or how much Welsh language they can speak. We hope to see more organisations and public leaders taking responsibility for the language.

We will recognise 'Intersectionality'

Recognising the intersecting needs across several characteristics of an individual or group such as sexual orientation, gender reassignment, race, disability, and religion, is often defined as “intersectionality” (see below, “Glossary of Terms”). In the responses, there was a clear desire to see more recognition of LGBTQ+ people as individuals, who may have many other aspects and layers of their identity and lives. Some of these other characteristics can also be linked to additional barriers or inequality. As a government, we believe we should not be addressing LGBTQ+ inequalities in isolation, which is the motivation behind the Action Plans to address minorities, underserved, or disadvantaged groups. The LGBTQ+ Action Plan is intended to be used alongside other plans and initiatives, such as the Anti-racist Wales Action Plan, Framework for Action on Disability, and Gender Equality Plan, to make sure that all discrimination is addressed and reduced for everyone, whatever their personal circumstances. For instance, the Welsh Government has a clear plan to develop and implement learning disability policy from 2022-2026, and guidance to support the delivery of autism services. Additionally, our Violence against Women, Domestic Abuse and Sexual Violence National Strategy 2022-2026 aims to take action to tackle violence, gender inequality and misogyny head on – gender-based violence, misogyny, and sexism remain issues faced by many LGBTQ+ people. Therefore, when working we must consider other aspects of discrimination and how they intersect with disability, gender, age, race, and LGBTQ+. The above-mentioned strategies and plans should also be used in conjunction with this LGBTQ+ Action Plan.

“ Attaining cultural humility with the full appreciation of the intersectionality of humanity is an ultimate educational goal. ”

Coleman et al. 2022

Stakeholders Groups: Nothing about us without us

In rewriting this plan we aimed to say what we will do, in clearer terms, especially concerning the work with communities and groups across Wales. The active role of stakeholders and community representatives has been a key component during the development of this plan. This vital engagement will continue as we move to implement the actions. We will continue to listen to and understand the needs of groups, organisations and communities under the broad LGBTQ+ umbrella.

The LGBTQ+ Expert Panel, which provided invaluable help in the formation of this plan, will be refreshed and formalised into an ongoing advisory group that will continue to provide advice and insight to help the implementation of the plan, focusing on the needs of LGBTQ+ communities in Wales.

We will also continue to improve and increase our engagement with grassroots organisations that support LGBTQ+ people in Wales, as well as groups across Wales who have a direct interest in this area of policy. Particular attention will be given to the matter of banning conversion practices and to the establishment of a working group of people with professional and lived experiences in this area.

Themes, evidence and actions

A. Human Rights and Recognition

Vision: We will strengthen equality and human rights

We will continue our support for LGBTQ+ people by defending and promoting their right to take a full and equal role in Welsh society. Research undertaken in preparing this Action Plan highlighted concerns from non-binary and intersex people over a lack of recognition both societally and in how they are reflected in the way services operate (Welsh Government 2021). In addition, Trans people in Wales told us they would like to see the Welsh Government go above and beyond the actions of the UK Government in protecting and furthering trans people's rights. Research into British attitudes towards trans people by the Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC) suggests that negative public attitudes towards trans people may be increasing overtime in certain areas of life, including accessing refuges for survivors of domestic violence (Morgan et al. 2020).

Conversion practices

There is particular concern around the continuing practice of 'conversion practices', sometimes known as 'conversion therapy'. 'Conversion practice' is used as an umbrella term to describe harmful interventions of a wide-ranging nature, all of which are premised on the misconception that a person's sexual orientation and gender, including gender identity, can be changed or suppressed. Such practices are therefore consistently aimed at effecting a change from non-heterosexual to heterosexual and/or from trans or gender diverse to cisgender. Depending on the context, the term is used for a multitude of practices and methods, some of which are clandestine and therefore poorly documented (Human Rights Council 2020).

As we seek to move to ban conversion practices for all LGBTQ+ people in Wales, it is important to understand the impact and prevalence that conversion practices have on the LGBTQ+ communities (Welsh Government 2022d). The 2018 National LGBT survey found that 4.8% of cisgender LGBTQ+ people in Wales were offered but did not undergo conversion practices (GEO 2018a), while 2.1% had undergone it. This was higher for trans populations, with 9.0% of respondents in Wales being offered but not undergoing conversion practices and an additional 5.6% having undergone it. The report found that for respondents in the UK who had undergone conversion practices in more than half of cases, these had been conducted by faith organisations.

In 2020, Galop, a UK's LGBTQ+ anti-abuse charity, surveyed UK LGBTQ+ survivors of sexual assault and found that 23.5% of respondents reported that the perpetrator 'intended to convert' or punish their LGBTQ+ identity (Galop 2022: p.3). This percentage was higher for asexual people (34.4%), non-binary people (31.9%), trans men (34.7%) and trans women (29.6%).

Conversion practices are not used in the NHS. NHS Wales signed the Memorandum of Understanding on Banning Conversion Practices (BACP 2022), which is an agreement by organisations working in the provision of mental or psychological health delivery or commissioning, to seek to ensure they do not commission or provide conversion therapy.

We want every LGBTQ+ person to be treated with equal value, to be safe and to live authentically and openly as themselves, which is why the Programme for Government, and the Co-operation Agreement with Plaid Cymru, highlight that we will ban all aspects of LGBTQ+ conversion practices that are within our current powers and seek the devolution of any necessary additional powers to enable us to achieve this. In addition, we will seek the devolution of powers in relation to Gender Recognition and support our Trans community.

The consultation responses overwhelmingly stated that conversion practices that try and force people to change their sexual orientation or gender should be stopped. A clear definition of conversion practices was needed to make sure that legitimate discussions and support about an individual's feelings about their sexual orientation or gender would not be included in any ban. A dedicated Working Group on Banning Conversion Practices has been established by Welsh Government and will provide advice and guidance to Welsh Government on this work – which will be led by Social Justice, Social Partnership, and the Equality and Human Rights Division.

Our actions:

1. Strengthen understanding of the human rights of LGBTQ+ people.
2. Improve LGBTQ+ people's understanding of how to assert their human rights.
3. Ban all aspects of LGBTQ+ Conversion Practices.
4. Strengthen LGBTQ+ representation on equality forums.
5. Involve LGBTQ+ communities in designing public services.
6. Provide recognition of non-binary and intersex people.
7. Seek the devolution of powers in relation to Gender Recognition.
8. International engagement showcases our LGBTQ+ values and support in Wales and globally.

B. Safety and freedom from discrimination

Vision: We will make Wales a safer place for all LGBTQ+ people

Feeling safer in Wales will allow LGBTQ+ people to thrive and live free from fear, in their personal life and in society. Many LGBTQ+ people in Wales continue to feel unsafe and at a high risk of abuse or discrimination (Stonewall Cymru 2017a), and therefore it is vital that action is taken to address this and seek to improve the safety LGBTQ+ people in Wales.

The National Hate Crime Statistics for England and Wales 2021/2022 were published by the Home Office in October 2022. The statistics show a 35% increase in recorded hate crimes across Wales compared to 2020-2021 (Welsh Government 2022e; Home Office 2022a). There were 6,295 recorded hate crimes across the four Welsh Police Force Areas of which:

- 1,329 (21%) were sexual orientation hate crimes
- 247 (4%) were transgender hate crimes.

For the year April 2021 to March 2022, police recorded sexual orientation hate crimes in Wales increased by 50% on the previous year (from 884 to 1,329) and hate crimes against transgender people (i.e., transgender hate crimes) rose by 43% (from 173 to 247 incidents) Home Office 2021a; Home Office 2022a; Home Office 2021b: Appendix Table; Home Office 2022b: Appendix Table).

Hate crimes may have multiple motivating factors, and the above statistics represent those crimes for which sexual orientation or gender identity were included in the recorded motivating factors.

According to the “Is Wales Fairer?” report (EHRC 2018b: p.94; also see Stonewall Cymru 2017a), evidence from the voluntary sector suggests that these increases in recorded crime may also reflect an increase in incidents: in 2017, 20% of lesbian, gay and bisexual (LGB) people in Wales had been a victim of hate crime or incident in the previous 12 months, compared with 11% in 2013; half (52%) of trans people reported that they had been a victim of a hate crime or incident in 2017. This is a concern, but we also know that this is the tip of the iceberg, and many more hate crimes go unreported. The report also mentioned that the majority of LGB and trans people who had experienced a hate crime or incident (82%) did not report it to the police. The same report also mentioned that lesbian, gay and bisexual people were more than twice as likely than the wider population to be survivors or victims of domestic abuse and sexual violence in 2016/17. Most recognised studies indicate up to 40% of the LGBTQ+ population will experience domestic abuse in some form during their lives, this rises to approx. 80% for the trans community (Welsh Government 2022f).

Evidence shows that ethnic minority LGBTQ+ people are at a greater risk of discrimination. The Home and Communities report (Stonewall 2018a) indicated that in Britain, 11% of LGBTQ+ respondents experienced domestic abuse from their partner. This increased to 17% for ethnic minority LGBTQ+ respondents. Additionally, 51% of ethnic minority respondents reported experiencing discrimination because of their ethnicity from within their local LGBTQ+ communities within the year prior – for Black people this increases again to 61%.

Although the majority of LGBTQ+ people in Wales do live fulfilling and positive lives, we also know that too many live in fear of discrimination and prejudice, and people in Wales continue to face discrimination at home and in their respective communities. Nearly half (46%) of respondents to Stonewall Cymru’s 2020 survey which informed the Expert Panel report Welsh Government 2021c; Welsh Government 2021d), stated they had been subjected to verbal harassment in the year prior, while 26% had suffered online abuse or harassment and 13% experienced the threat of physical or sexual harassment and violence in the same period. These findings show how much more must be done to make homes and communities in Wales safe for all.

Evidence also suggests that LGBTQ+ people are particularly at risk of homelessness (Llamau 2019), with UK-wide data suggesting that LGBTQ+ young people are grossly over-represented within youth homelessness populations (Albert Kennedy Trust 2015). In the UK, research from the Albert Kennedy Trust found that LGBT young people were more likely to find themselves homeless, than heterosexual and cisgender youth, reporting LGBT young people make up 24% of the homeless population. However, there is still significant gap in dataset for Wales on youth homelessness and their characteristics, and responses to the consultation also suggested that there is still a perception of risks concerning discrimination in the private rental sector.

We know that many services that provide care for people surviving violence or abuse already have provision in their service design to be inclusive of LGBTQ+ people, including the needs of lesbian and trans women. It is important that these services continue, and that the needs of LGBTQ+ people reporting and receiving care after surviving violence and/or abuse are acknowledged and taken into account. We also look forward to working with criminal justice partners, in the hope that we will be able to effectively tackle inequality and to create an LGBTQ+ inclusive criminal justice system.

The Minister for Social Justice Jane Hutt MS wrote to the UK Government to ask to accept the recommendation that the aggravated offences which currently exist for race and religion should be extended to all other existing characteristics within the hate crime legislative regime, including sexual orientation and transgender identity. This would send out a clear message that hate crime motivated by sexual orientation, transgender identity is unacceptable and there are consequences for those perpetrating these hateful actions. We will keep advocating for LGBTQ+ hate crime to be made an aggravated offence, and will also seek to take forward our Programme for Government commitment to pursue the case for devolution of policing and justice.

Our actions:

9. Remove barriers to LGBTQ+ people reporting hate crime.
10. Continue to invest in hate crime prevention programmes across Wales.
11. Counter online anti-LGBTQ+ attitudes and hate crimes.
12. Improve the relationship of LGBTQ+ communities with Policing in Wales.
13. Target violence against women, domestic abuse and sexual violence (VAWDASV) among LGBTQ+ communities.
14. Homelessness services are inclusive of the specific needs of LGBTQ+ people.

C. A Nation of Sanctuary for Asylum Seekers and Refugees

Vision: We will make Wales a Nation of Sanctuary for LGBTQ+ migrants

We are aiming for Wales to become the world's first 'Nation of Sanctuary', celebrating Welsh hospitality and our history of migration and safety. The ambition is wherever in Wales people seeking sanctuary go, they are met with welcome, understanding and celebration of their unique contribution to the rich tapestry of life in Wales.

We believe the UK Government agreement with the Government of Rwanda to process asylum claims is devastating for LGBTQ+ refugees and asylum seekers, placing LGBTQ+ people at great risk of ill treatment, discrimination, arbitrary arrest, and detention. In the UK Government Equality Impact Assessment for the policy, the real risks that this agreement would pose for LGBTQ+ people was highlighted (Home Office 2022c). Our Nation of Sanctuary vision and plan is about making Wales not just welcoming to migrants, but also harnessing the opportunities which migration brings to help our economy and communities to thrive. The plan to send asylum seekers to Rwanda is the opposite of that vision.

Many asylum seekers flee their own country because of being persecuted for who they are and for who they love, escaping violence and abuse due to their sexual orientation or gender identity (Mole 2021; Dyck 2019). Therefore, one of our actions concentrates on the importance of working with UK Government to improve sensitive identification of LGBTQ+ people, their safeguarding, and signposting measures including through improvements of tools such as the Asylum Support Application Form (ASF1 form).

We are committed to work in collaboration with Local Authorities and key partners to ensure that housing provisions for LGBTQ+ asylum seekers (Glitter Cymru & DPIA 2022) and refugees meet their needs.

Our actions:

15. Identify, safeguard and signpost LGBTQ+ people in claiming asylum.
16. Encourage the development of LGBTQ+ only asylum properties in Wales.
17. Ensure Wales a Nation of Sanctuary remains inclusive of LGBTQ+ people.

D. Healthcare, social care, and welfare

Vision: we will improve healthcare outcomes for all LGBTQ+ people

Within healthcare settings LGBTQ+ people feel that they may face unequal treatment and discrimination. Examples of these inequalities are highlighted in the LGBT Health report (Stonewall 2018b). For example, the report states almost one in four LGBTQ+ people (23%) have at one time witnessed discriminatory or negative remarks against LGBTQ+ people by healthcare staff. Moreover, 14% of respondents avoided healthcare treatment due to concerns that they would experience discrimination because of their LGBTQ+ identity.

Research has also indicated that some LGBTQ+ people do not disclose their gender or sexual orientation to healthcare services. The National LGBT survey reported that in the 12 months that preceded the survey, of their Welsh sample, 50% of LGBTQ+ cisgender people stated they had never shared their sexual orientation with healthcare staff (GEO 2018b). Moreover, 19.6% of Welsh trans respondents reported in the National LGBT Survey that their specific needs were disregarded when using or attempting to use healthcare services.

Research undertaken in England (NatCen Social Research et al. 2021) indicated that LGB people were more likely to be current smokers compared to heterosexual adults (27% and 18% respectively). Similar patterns were recorded for the prevalence of drinking alcohol 'to an increased risk or higher risk' (32% for LGB adults compared to 24% of heterosexuals).

Previous reports show that LGBTQ+ disabled people continue to face discrimination on the basis of their sexual orientation and/or gender identity from those providing personal care (SSCR 2017). Research on the experiences of LGBTQ+ people in social care settings has shown it is often noted that the needs of older people are not always met (PolicyBristol 2017; Hafford-Letchfield et al 2018).

Westwood's (2018) commentary on the abuse facing older LGBT people concluded that they are vulnerable to abuse at an organisational level as well as an interpersonal level. Westwood highlights that despite facing abuse based on their gender or sexual orientation, older LGBT people are less likely to report this due to the social marginalisation they may experience living as an older LGBT person.

Each of these findings display that work must be done to ensure that LGBTQ+ people in Wales are safe and confident in accessing the health and social care system. There are also several areas where LGBTQ+ people are disproportionately affected, such as depression and substance use (Stonewall 2018b; Pitman et al 2021).

Data from the National Survey for Wales (Welsh Government 2021f) between 2019-2020 indicated that LGBTQ+ people were twice as likely to report feeling lonely (30%) compared to their heterosexual counterparts (15%). According to the report "Is Wales Fairer?" (EHRC 2018b: p.102), loneliness, isolation and a reduced sense of belonging are some of the most significant issues facing particular groups, including lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender people, and people from some ethnic minorities.

We must take action to better understand and mitigate for these disproportionalities, especially for transgender and non-binary people. Being transgender should be celebrated as a valued and important part of families, communities, and societies (AusPATH, 2021; World Health Organisation, 2018). Delaying or preventing a person from having their identity respected can have a negative impact on their lives (Ashley 2019). Research has shown the harms of delayed transition, with UK based research demonstrating the challenges, frustration, and trauma of trans people, including young people, who have experienced rejection and delay. There is evidence that indicates the positive impact of pre-pubertal social transition (Durwood et al. 2021; Horton 2022). Research on socially transitioned trans children has shown positive mental health and well-being outcomes (Durwood et al., 2017; Olson et al. 2016). These findings also reinforce retrospective research on the negative mental health toll of childhood rejection, drawn from research with trans adults and trans youth (Katz-Wise et al. 2018; Klein & Golub 2016; Pollitt et al. 2021; Russell et al. 2018; Simons et al. 2013; Travers et al. 2012; Wallace & Russell 2013).

Although Wales has in place its own gender service, this only caters to adults. In simple words: there are no gender services for transgender children and young people in Wales. Therefore, they are often signposted to services in England. A Gender identity services Inspection report (Care Quality Commission 2019) has found that Gender Services for young people are still inadequate in England, saying that, “The service was difficult to access. There were over 4600 young people on the waiting list. Young people waited over two years for their first appointment”. The cited research is among the many reasons that encourage us to do more and to continue to develop our gender services for adults in Wales, and to consider options for the development of a gender service for young people in Wales. This will include an evidence-driven approach and engagement with young people, service users, and stakeholders.

In line with Action 18, Activity 18.4 of this Plan (see below), our ambition is that the overall health outcomes and experiences of trans and non-binary people will be considered at all stages of gender reassignment. This includes, for instance, cancer screening and sexual health provisions.

Our actions:

18. Understand and improve the experience of LGBTQ+ people in the health and social care sectors.
19. Ensure maternity and fertility services are accessible and straightforward to use for LGBTQ+ people.
20. Ensure the development of the new mental health strategy takes account of LGBTQ+ people.
21. Publish and act on a new HIV Action Plan.
22. Overcome barriers to LGBTQ+ people accessing sexual health services.
23. Review the Gender Identity Development pathway for young people in Wales.
24. Continue to develop the Wales Gender Service.
25. Improve the data recording and change processes for maintaining trans, non-binary and intersex people’s medical records.

E. Inclusive education

Vision: We will provide LGBTQ+ inclusive education across Wales

In 2017, Welsh Government's Expert Sex and Relationships Education panel drew on a wide range of national and international research (Renold and McGeeney 2017a; 2017b), one of the key findings of the panel was that there was a gap between children and young people's lived experiences of relationships and sexuality and the content of Relationships and Sexuality Education (RSE) provision.

Research undertaken in the School Report Cymru (Stonewall Cymru 2017b) states that 58% of Welsh LGBT students have not been taught LGBT matters, 84% had never been educated on bisexuality and 87% had never been educated on transgender people and other genders. There have however been recent changes. With the roll out of the Curriculum for Wales in September 2022, developmentally appropriate Relationships and Sexuality Education (RSE) became mandatory for all learners. The RSE Code aims to ensure that 'all learners can see themselves, their families, their communities and each other reflected across the curriculum and can learn to value difference and diversity as a source of strength' (Welsh Government Hwb 2022).

Schools and settings have an important role to play in creating safe and empowering environments in supporting learners' rights to enjoy fulfilling, healthy and safe relationships throughout their lives. We are enabling more inclusive education, by committing to provide national guidance for schools by Summer 2023 to help schools fully support transgender pupils.

Findings from a UK-wide survey by Just Like Us (Milsom 2021) reported that only 58% of LGBTQ+ students described feeling safe on a daily basis at school in the 12 months prior – compared to a higher figure of 73% for non-LGBT+ students. In addition, 43% of LGBTQ+ students reported being bullied, compared to 21% of non-LGBT students.

The School Report Cymru (Stonewall 2017a) stated that of Welsh students aged 11-19 years, 54% of LGBT students including 73% of trans students experienced bullying at school about their sexual orientation or gender. Moreover, the report indicated that 60% of respondents 'frequently' or 'often' heard homophobic language, in school, while 49% reported having heard biphobic language and 51% reported hearing transphobic language.

According to "Is Wales Fairer?" report (EHRC 2018: p.25), those with special needs or a disability, lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender pupils and those from an ethnic minority or religious background are at particular risk of being bullied; cyberbullying is also on the rise (Estyn 2014).

Schools are places where learners should feel safe and ready to learn. Any form of bullying or sexual harassment is completely unacceptable.

We want to see an end to all forms of bullying. Our commitment to tackle this issue aims to ensure that LGBTQ+ young people understand how to get support and gain the confidence to challenge bullying, harassment and discrimination.

Our actions:

26. Provide national trans guidance for schools and local authorities.
27. Support LGBTQ+ young people and tackle homophobic, biphobic, and transphobic bullying.
28. Design and implement a whole school approach that is fully LGBTQ+ inclusive.
29. Ensure that all colleges and universities in Wales are LGBTQ+ inclusive environments for learners, students, and staff.

F. Communities, private and family life

Vision: We will improve inclusion and participation for LGBTQ+ people in all areas of life

Wales is made up of diverse communities, languages, identities and cultures. All people, whatever their identity or wherever they live, should be able to feel a sense of belonging both to their community and to Wales. From rural and urban communities to communities of faith, culture and the arts.

According to the National Survey for Wales (2021f), in 2018-19, 72.4% of adults in Wales agreed they felt they belonged to their local area. However, people identifying as gay, lesbian, or bisexual (63.2%) were less likely to agree than those identifying as heterosexual/straight (72.6%). For instance, gay, lesbian and bisexual and transgender people in Wales were found still experiencing poor treatment while going about their lives. Supporting young people and families will be a key part of improving inclusion and participation for LGBTQ+ people. Addressing regional inequalities, particularly in rural Wales, and in areas where Welsh is the primary language will help all LGBTQ+ people feel a sense of belonging. We recognise the impact events such as the National Eisteddfod for Wales and their Mas ar y Maes partnership, and others, have had. Our ambition is to ensure the needs of Welsh language speakers are met in the representation of LGBTQ+ culture.

More research is needed to understand rural and regional issues in Wales faced by LGBTQ+ people.

We have already begun providing funding to local Pride events and will be continuing to support local Prides. We recognise the particular importance that these events can have in creating a feeling of inclusion and community.

A recent “Call for Evidence” was launched to share views on the treatment of veterans affected by the pre-2000 ban on homosexuality in the armed forces (LGBT Veterans Independent Review 2022). The review will consider the experiences of LGBTQ+ veterans and their families prior to the ban and the impact this had on their lives. The ‘Call for Evidence’ closed on 1 December 2022 and the full results will not be known for some time. However, some of the actions and activities in this Plan seek to address some of these issues and concerns. Officials will review the results of the Call for Evidence when available and consider whether any further action is needed as a result. By way of background, prior to 2000, homosexual acts were considered an offence if found guilty under the Army Act 1955, the Air Force Act 1955, and the Naval Discipline Act 1957. Section 1(1) of the Sexual Offences Act 1967 (amendment of law relating to homosexual acts in private) decriminalised homosexual acts between adults in private and was repealed by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 sections 139, 140, Schedule 6, paragraph 15(a), Schedule 1, wef 1 May 2004.

Our actions:

30. Support the family lives of LGBTQ+ people.
31. Support the LGBTQ+ youth work sector.
32. Support open dialogue between faith groups and LGBTQ+ people.
33. Ensure that LGBTQ+ Welsh speakers have access to Welsh medium support services.
34. Provide support for LGBTQ+ people to participate in democracy, including standing for elected positions.
35. Support Pride organisations across Wales.
36. Use LGBTQ+ awareness events to amplify LGBTQ+ voices.
37. Support LGBTQ+ veterans of the Armed Services.

G. Participation in Welsh life: culture and sport

Vision: We will improve inclusion and participation for LGBTQ+ people in all areas of life

Welsh LGBTQ+ history, culture, and heritage in Wales has contributed to our legacy and experiences as a nation – and these stories need to be told. Over the past decade, the showcasing of sexual orientations and gender, including gender identity and expression, in history, literature and heritage has greatly increased, as proven by the effort of National Museum Wales and Queer Britain to showcase and archive LGBTQ+ stories and experiences. However, there is still an overall lack of familiarity, knowledge and engagement with the subject (Welsh Government 2021g).

We are also aware that Wales has some of the best creative talent in the world. Through Creative Wales, we want to champion an environment where talent from all communities, including LGBTQ+ communities, can be nurtured through skills development and creative industries can continue to grow. Therefore, we recommend reading this Action Plan along the Priorities for the Creative Industries Sector in Wales (Welsh Government 2020d) and the new three-year Creative Skills Action Plan (2022-2025) which is aligned to the Programme for Government commitment to establish a Creative Skills Body (Welsh Government 2022g).

Sport is also an important element of life in Wales. In recent times, various international and domestic sporting bodies have announced policies which are not fully inclusive of trans people, particularly transgender women. A blanket exclusion of transgender and non-binary people risks sending a wrong message to trans young people that they cannot have the same opportunities as their friends and other children, and to all young people that they must present a certain way to be respected for who they are – which has broader implications.

Sport is wide-ranging and a uniform approach to a very complex issue is challenging. There is clearly widespread support for ensuring that sport is welcoming to all, including transgender people. Our position concerning inclusion in sport is clear: LGBTQ+ rights, including trans rights, are human rights – and as the First Minister Mark Drakeford said, our starting point is that transgender women are women (Senedd Cymru 2022b). Sport should be for everyone, a place where everyone can take part and where everyone is treated with kindness, dignity and respect. We must work hard to look for opportunities for dialogue, to find ways of promoting understanding rather than conflict, and to demonstrate respect rather than to look for exclusion.

Our actions:

38. Improve the representation, inclusion, and participation of LGBTQ+ people in sports.
39. Improve the access and participation of transgender people in sport.
40. Celebrate and improve the representation of LGBTQ+ communities in the heritage and culture of Wales.
41. Increase the involvement of LGBTQ+ people and organisations in the design of cultural events and activities.

H. Inclusive Workplaces

Vision: We will improve inclusion and participation for LGBTQ+ people in all areas of life

Although organisations are increasingly taking pride in their commitment to LGBTQ+ staff, customers and service users, discrimination in the workplace remains widespread. The National LGBT survey reported that 22.4% of Welsh respondents experienced adverse reactions at work because of their gender or sexual orientation or being perceived as LGBT (GE0 2017). 11.1% also reported receiving ‘inappropriate’ comments or conduct, and 9.3% reported verbal harassment. 2019-2020 data from the National Survey for Wales (Welsh Government 2021f) reported that 19% of lesbian, gay and bisexual people had experienced bullying at work in the year prior to undertaking the survey. This compares to 11% of heterosexual people. Moreover, 20% of lesbian, gay and bisexual people reported having experienced discrimination within their workplace in the last 12 months, compared to 10% of heterosexual people.

The Work report (Stonewall 2018c) showed that more than a third of LGBT staff (35%) hid the fact they were LGBT at work for fear of discrimination; one in ten Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic LGBT employees (10%) had been physically attacked by customers or colleagues in the year prior; and nearly two in five bi people (38%) weren’t out to anyone at work.

The prominence of glass ceilings in the workplace for gay and lesbian managers remains a phenomenon observed within the UK (Frank 2006; Aksoy et al. 2019). Recent and historical research suggests that “sexual minorities” are less likely to be in a higher managerial position compared to their heterosexual counterparts and suggests that it is due to differential returns received by gay and lesbian managers compared to heterosexual counterparts for their education and additional skills.

A survey and focus groups undertaken in the development of this action plan (Welsh Government 2021c), found that whilst 45% of people reported that those in the workplace reacted only positively when aware they were LGBTQ+, 24% reported un-permissible exposure of their LGBTQ+ identity in the workplace (or ‘outing’) and 10% recounted experiencing verbal harassment. This needs to change, happiness in the workplace is important. It improves the health of workers, leads to better working relationships and can boost creativity and productivity. Workplaces in Wales have improved, yet we need to go further to eradicate discrimination and empower all those in employment to be themselves as well as championing the positive impact diversity can have in all types of organisations.

Our actions:

42. Remove unnecessary personal identifications from recruitment practices.
43. Provide equalities training that includes the needs of LGBTQ+ people to all public sector organisations.
44. Encourage private sector employers to be LGBTQ+ inclusive.

I. Impact of COVID-19

Anecdotal evidence suggests a disproportionate impact from COVID-19 among LGBTQ+ communities in Wales. More widely in the UK, online surveys have indicated inequalities experienced by LGBTQ+ people throughout COVID-19. For example, LGBT Hero's LGBTQ+ Lockdown Wellbeing (2020) report highlights that LGBTQ+ people reported high rates of experience of violence and abuse during lockdown. This was reported particularly by younger people, but also by trans and gender diverse people who reported twice as much violence and abuse during lockdown than cisgender people. The report indicates that of their LGBTQ+ sample, 15% reported experiencing violence or abuse throughout lockdown. This figure was more than twice as high for Black and South Asian LGBTQ+ people compared to their white counterparts. Additionally the report indicated that 79% of their UK sample reported that their mental health was negatively impacted by COVID-19 lockdown.

An LGBT Foundation report (2020) highlights that 30% of UK LGBT respondents were living alone during the pandemic – older LGBT people are more likely to have been living alone throughout the pandemic with 40% of 50+ years old reporting this. Moreover, the report indicated that 8% of respondents did not feel safe in their living arrangements when surveyed during lockdown. This is not equally experienced across LGBTQ+ communities as for ethnic minority LGBT people the proportion was 9%, 15% for LGBT disabled people, 17% for trans people and 17% for non-binary people.

It is vital to collect and understand data first, to fully appreciate these impacts in order to identify and prioritise actions to reduce the current and future impact of the COVID-19 pandemic – and potential future pandemics – on LGBTQ+ communities living in Wales.

Our actions:

45. In planning and implementing a recovery response to COVID-19, to consider the experiences of LGBTQ+ people, particularly on mental health.
46. Undertake a thorough investigation into how LGBTQ+ people, particularly LGBTQ+ young people and LGBTQ+ disabled people, in Wales have been impacted by the Coronavirus pandemic.

LGBTQ+ Action Plan: Actions and Key Performance Indicators

The following table will clarify what we want to achieve and how we will achieve it. It will also provide an overview of the impact and changes we hope to generate. Each action will be linked to specific action owners or leads and will show a timeline for delivery and implementation. The following terminology has been used in the column headings for this section, and form the basis of how we will measure our performance:

- Action: it represents what we aim to achieve or our ambitions.
- Activities: these are the practical steps or actions that shows how we will achieve our ambition or aim.
- Outcome: the impact that we expect to see.
- Timeline: the timescale of when we will undertake the suggested activities: ongoing, short term, middle term, or long term – where “long term” refers to a timescale up to the end of the current Senedd.
- Action owners: who will lead or help deliver the actions.

Glossary of Terms

The following Glossary of Terms gathers some definitions used in previous Welsh Government publications and legislation (Welsh Government 2019b; Welsh Government 2019c). However, there are some terms that do not have a legal definition. For further information, and for those terms that do not have a legal definition, please check other glossary of terms already available, including the a:gender (2022) page, Stonewall page (2022), the Glossary for the Welsh Government Report on the Census 2021 (Welsh Government 2023), and the ONS's Census 2021 dictionary (ONS Census 2021). This section should be used to clarify the terminology used in this Action Plan. We acknowledge the importance of understanding how people refer to themselves, and this list of terms does not intend to suggest comprehensive definitions of orientations and identities beyond the purpose of this work.

Ace/Aro, or Asexual/Aromantic: Ace, or “asexual” covers a group of definitions for people whose experience of sexual attraction is either absent or significantly reduced. Aro is an abbreviated term for aromantic, which often refers to someone who have little or no romantic attraction to others.

Conversion Practices: Conversion practice is used as an umbrella term to describe interventions of a wide-ranging nature, all of which are premised on the misconception that a person's sexual orientation and gender, including gender identity and expression, can be changed or suppressed when they do not fall under what other actors in a given setting and time perceive as the desirable norm, in particular when the person is lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans, non-binary or gender diverse (henceforth “LGBTQ+”). Such practices are therefore consistently aimed at effecting a change from non-heterosexual to heterosexual and/or from trans or gender diverse to cisgender. Depending on the context, the term is used for a multitude of practices and methods, some of which are clandestine and therefore poorly documented.

Gender: A term that is used to refer to whether someone's internal sense of themselves is female, male or non-binary. People's gender does not always align with the sex they were assigned at birth (see transgender/trans). This term is sometimes used in the context of gender expression or gender identity.

Gender Diverse: The term “gender-diverse” is used to refer to persons whose gender, including their gender identity and gender expression, is at odds with what is perceived as being the gender norm in a particular context at a particular point in time, including those who do not place themselves in the male/female binary.

Gender Expression: This refers to how an individual chooses to present themselves in society to reflect their gender in conjunction with certain social and cultural norms and differences that societies have about how people behave, express themselves, look or dress. People often find an important sense of identity in these, but they can also perpetuate discrimination, inequalities and harms.

Gender Identity: This term is often used interchangeably with gender and ultimately means the same thing – someone's internal sense of themselves. The term “gender identity” has been the source of polarising rhetoric around the phrase “identify as...” and has been rejected by some people and groups who favour the more straightforward “gender”.

Gender Reassignment: This is a term describing transgender people who are legally protected from discrimination. Under Section 7 of the Equality Act 2010. A person has the protected characteristic of gender reassignment if the person is proposing to undergo, is undergoing or has undergone a process (or part of a process) for the purpose of reassigning the person's sex by changing physiological or other attributes of sex.

Intersectionality: It is related to the way in which different types of discrimination (i.e., unfair treatment because of a person's protected characteristics) are connected to and affect each other. Intersectional discrimination, sometimes known as combined discrimination, is where a person is discriminated against because of a particular combination of two or more protected characteristics.

Intersex and VSC: An intersex person is someone who does not fit conventional expectations for male or female development in terms of anatomy, metabolism or genetics. The opposite of intersex is endosex, which is where a person does fit conventional expectations. Some clinicians use the term differences in sex development (DSD), but this term is unpopular among intersex groups as it is connected to the former meaning of DSD as "disorders of sex development". The term "disorder" is felt to be pejorative. Similarly, the term intersex is sometimes rejected by some groups and may prefer to refer to "Variations of Sex Characteristics" (VSC) or "variations in reproductive or sex anatomy".

LGBTQ+: Refers to lesbian, gay, bisexual/bi, transgender/trans people, queer or questioning. Other letters can be added to the acronym to include other groups, orientations and identities, such as I (intersex) and A (asexual/aromantic). The + (plus) in the acronym is used as a shorthand to include and acknowledge other diverse terms people identify with and use to describe their identities and orientations, including intersex, asexual and aromantic people.

Non-binary: A non-binary person is someone whose gender lies outside the traditional male/female binary idea of gender.

Protected Characteristics: Section 4 of the Equality Act 2010 sets out what are protected characteristics, which are age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, and sexual orientation.

Queer: A term used mainly by people who identify with a minority sexual orientation or gender identity, sometimes rejecting other labels of orientations or identities. Although it was used in the past as derogatory term for LGBTQ+ individuals, and some people view the word as a slur, it has now been reclaimed by many LGBTQ+ communities.

Sex: attributed to a person on the basis of a range of characteristics including chromosomes, hormone profiles and reproductive anatomy and functions (e.g., genitalia). Some people's gender does not match with the sex they were assigned at birth (see transgender/trans). Currently in the UK, only two sexes can be recorded at birth, which excludes intersex people. In Section 11 of the Equality Act 2010, it says that "in relation to the protected characteristic of sex — (a) a reference to a person who has a particular protected characteristic is a reference to a man or to a woman".

Sexual Orientation: This term is defined in Section 12 of the Equality Act 2010. Sexual Orientation means a person's sexual, orientation towards persons of the same sex, persons of the opposite sex or persons of either sex. People might use the terms heterosexual, gay, bisexual/bi, lesbian or straight to describe their sexual orientation.

Transgender/trans: An umbrella term used to describe people whose gender is not the same as, or does not sit comfortably with, the sex they were assigned at birth. The opposite of transgender is cisgender, which describes people whose gender is the same, and sits comfortably with their sex assigned at birth. Some non-binary people regard themselves as falling under the trans umbrella, but not all.
