

9 December 2025

Dear

ATISN 26444 – Relationships and Sexuality Education (RSE)

Information requested

Thank you for your request which I received on 4 December 2025. You asked for:

- A list of all companies/organisations which provide RSE resources for use in Welsh schools?

Our response

The Welsh Government does not hold this information and this reply is being treated as business as usual correspondence.

The use of resources in the classroom is a matter for individual schools to determine, in line with their curriculum arrangements under the statutory Curriculum for Wales framework guidance. Bilingual resources in support of the Curriculum for Wales are published on our Hwb education platform. Information on the authoring organisation is presented for each resource.

All schools in Wales are legally required to ensure that RSE is both developmentally appropriate and pluralistic in its content and delivery. This means that when questions of values are addressed, schools must present a range of views on the subject that are commonly held within society. This requirement also extends to the curriculum resources and materials used by schools and settings, which must be in line with RSE Code and statutory guidance.

As part of the Curriculum for Wales grant support programme, in June this year, the Cabinet Secretary for Education, Lynne Neagle MS, announced a £4.2 million grant over three years for the 'Cwtch Education Project' to ensure consistent professional learning, expertise, advice and resources on RSE for all schools across Wales.
